Alien-Human Hybrids: They Walk Among Us

I was alerted late last week by a little flying saucer that David Jacobs would be making an appearance on the Kate Valentine UFO Show.

I've listened to her show before. Ms. Valentine is no journalist. She generally is a softball pitcher to her guests. Her shows are obviously meant for entertainment and not for edification. It was a wonderful opportunity for Mr. Jacobs to acquire some feel-good moments and hit a few out of the park. He did just that, ending a pretty fluff-stuffed interview with the gushing pronouncement that, yes, indeed, Alien Human Hybrids walk among us.

What a load of crap.

Mr. Jacobs, your Alien-human hybrids don't exist. They're characters in the little hypnotically contrived universe you've created and the only reason you're able to fork forth your malarkey is the fact that there are a lot of gullible podcasters out there smitten with the idea of pumping out fantastical tales to up their download stats.

And it appears that you will not conduct an interview in which you are required to answer tough questions.

Questions such as:

How is your flight from capture by the Hybrids going?

How many of your hypnotic subjects have you abducted into serving as human shields in your fugitive flight from the invading half-breed hobboblins? How many psyches are you willing to plunder with your hamhanded hypnosis practices for the sake of pumping out soft-porn bestsellers?

How is it that you acknowledge that hypnotic regression is the weakest means of gathering evidence regarding alien abduction and yet base your entire body of work in this field on hypnotic regression?

How is it that you call yourself a researcher yet your own University does not acknowledge your work in the field of alien abductions as research? If you are not a therapist, as you rightly claim, and you have no license or certification in the practice of hypnosis and you are not a researcher, as your school intimates, just what are you, Mr. Jacobs?

I'll tell you what you are. You are not accountable to anyone for anything that you do with regard to alien abduction research. You are not a psychotherapist. Therefore, you are not beholden to any psychological or psychiatric board of review. You are not a researcher. Therefore, you are not beholden to ethical standards regarding human subjects research.

You just do what you do without any oversight of your actions. And winning smiles from your buddy Hopkins doesn't count as oversight.

You just say what you say and its law. This allows you to go on fluffcasts and make outrageous claims based on practices you acknowledge yourself are suspect.

By some miracle, for instance, hypnotic regression acquires legitimacy once David Jacobs adopts the practice. And David Jacobs is not a psychotherapist but goes to enough winetastings at Psych department get-togethers to allow him to diagnose his hypnotic subjects with psychological disorders to provide psychic cover from incoming alien-human hybrid shrapnel.

Wasn't it true "Dr." Jacobs that you implanted a hypnotic suggestion in the mind of one of your patients that she was afflicted with multiple personality disorder for the purpose of evading the pursuit of your person by Alien Human Hybrids? Doesn't such an act constitute an outrage, even if you had obtained consent?

If you were given permission to chop off your subject's head, would you do so?

Were you subject to any kind of review whatsoever of your practices you would easily realize that the outrage retains its insult. This is why doctors have the Hippocratic Oath.

Are you, Mr. Jacobs, bound by any oath whatsoever?

Well, this is what Miss Valentine would have asked you were she a journalist. She is not. She just likes a good yarn and you're happy to spin one for her.

Well, enough. I get we're not supposed to ask David Jacobs tough questions. How about lets get to the heart of the matter?

It is time, Dr. Jacobs, for you to produce an Alien Human Hybrid. Allow one to capture you. This avoids your having to use your clients as guinea-pig human shields and you get to confirm your deepest suspicions.

You are the hero of the Universe. You really should live up to your legend and go where no one has gone before.

The only way to regain your honor is to engage in hand to hand combat with the Hobgoblins themselves. A good self-hypnosis session ought to do it. Should you emerge victorious, you might be able to forge a new religion out of the experience. At least a spot in the Top Ten on New York Times Bestseller List.

It is a daunting task. I wish you luck, Doctor.

May the farce be with you.

Dr. Jacobs took on a 21-year-old man as a research subject after me. The young man contacted me through my website, and he told me about the nightmare that he subsequently became involved in. He ended up being pulled into the same horrendous situation with Dr. Jacobs and Elizabeth that I had just got out of.

A series of complex events took place that eventuated with the young man conducting "hypnosis" sessions with Elizabeth on instant messenger. He did this because Dr. Jacobs had been conducting hypnosis sessions with Elizabeth on IM (Dr. Jacobs talked to me about this as well), and both Dr. Jacobs and Elizabeth told him that it worked well.

Soon afterwards, the young man began to receive "hybrid" instant messaging from Elizabeth's computer in the same way that Dr. Jacobs was. The "hybrids" (a.k.a. Elizabeth) eventually made it clear to the young man that they had, in fact, located Dr. Jacobs.

The young man has given me permission to talk about it, and in an email he told me:

"Her "hybrids" spoke to me often about how they found Jacobs and how they're "controlling" him."

In another email the young man told me:

"... she described how she accidentally got it in her mind during a sexual procedure that she was involved intimately with Dr. Jacobs. That speaks volumes to me."

I learned through the young man that during a hypnosis session that he conducted with Elizabeth on IM, on July 30, 2007, that she told him the following:

She was on board a UFO, and saw Dr. Jacobs across the room on the other side. He was naked, and he was sitting and staring. He did not have his glasses on, and his hair was all messed up. She was upset, and telling the aliens to leave him alone. They took her out of the room into another area, and she was put on a table. An alien told her that she did not need to feel responsible for Dr. Jacobs being on the UFO, that he would not be harmed, and that she could forget it. The alien gave her a feeling that they were just doing a quick check-up on Dr. Jacobs, and that no harm would come to him. She was lying on a table, and aliens performed a gynecological procedure on her. During the procedure they stimulated sexual feelings in her to orgasm while putting sexual images of Dr. Jacobs in her mind.

After the hypnosis session was finished, Elizabeth told the young man that it had been hard to fight through, as they really did not want her remembering seeing Dr. Jacobs on board the UFO.

I think that it is pretty obvious that Elizabeth was simply typing a fictional story on IM to the young man.

However, Dr. Jacobs later told the young man that he had been "found" by Elizabeth's hybrids.

Nevertheless, although Dr. Jacobs claimed that he had been "found", he has never explained how it is that the "aliens" are letting him continue to talk about their secret infiltration of human society on Earth, when the reason that they were supposedly hunting him down in the first place was to stop him from doing that.

Wow that's some crazy stuff. I thought "The Threat" was a good book. The story he tells seems to fit well as an explanation into the ufo phenomenon. It seemed well researched to me, but I agree a history phd isn't really qualified to hypnotize someone. He has no accountability, and admittedly a tarnished reputation at best. Perhaps the truth is somewhere in the middle.

ADDITIONAL QUESTIONS

Mr. Jacobs, are you targeting sexual abuse victims for alien abduction?

"One of the most popular explanations for abductions in recent years," explains David Jacobs, not a psychologist, psychoanalyst, or psychiatrist, although often in consultation with said, in his book SECRET LIFE, notably citing no authorities who are psychologists, psychoanalysts, or psychiatrists for his contentions, "has been that the accounts are 'screen' memories masking the repression of sexual and/or physical abuse. This theory postulates that the victims are so traumatized by abuse they suffered as children that they forced the incidents out of their conscious memory, now, years later, the painful memories have resurfaced in disguised form."

While the Jacobs is unwilling to grant psychological professionals the application of screen memory theory, he indulges in said application himself. This is apparently some sort of executive privilege for amateurs.

"Often the abductee forms 'screen' memories that mask the beginning of an abduction event. For example, one abductee said she saw a wolf in her bedroom one night. The wolf was standing squarely on her bed looking her in the eyes. She clearly remembered its fur, fangs, and eyes. Other abductees have claimed to have seen monkeys, owls, deer, and other animals. Some say they have seen an 'angel' or a 'devil.' Through the use of hypnosis to recover the details of these events, each of these cases turned out to be the beginning of an abduction sequence."

Mr. Jacobs, are you targeting sexual abuse victims for alien abduction?

Obviously, valid application of screen memory theory for David Jacobs depends upon whether you are using it to propose the existence of extraterrestrials.

"Therapists have seized upon this explanation more than any other to get at the root of abduction memories for two reasons," he states on page 285 of Secret Life, "First, memories of abuse will suddenly be triggered in adulthood in much the same way as abduction memories. Second, abuse victims suffer many of the symptoms found in Post-Abduction Syndrome."

This unsubstantiated assertion—remember, the existence of aliens hasn't been conclusively proven—stakes a claim in the population of abuse victims for alien abduction narratives. Jacobs is abducting actual trauma to flesh out science-fictional trauma. The difference between psychological propounders of screen memory and alien-abduction propounders of screen memory is that we know for certain human child abusers and rapists exist but we do not know for certain alien child abusers and rapists exist.

Jacobs here successfully forecloses on childhood trauma.

"To complicate matters, while the aliens are performing their procedures," notes the authority, "young boys and girls sometimes see naked adults being examined and probed on other tables. Children watch as the aliens perform procedures on sometimes-erect male genitals. They see naked women enduring gynecological procedures. Children see their parents being subjected to gynecological and urological examinations."

(Pages 251, 252 of Secret Life; emphasis supplied.)

A Follow-Up Question

Mr. Jacobs, are you targeting sexual abuse victims for alien abduction?

There are two sides to this coin. Either there is abuse perpetrated by humans or abuse perpetrated by aliens. For both to be possible, both must be conclusively proven. One is. The other is not. One is local. The other is not.

The alien side, based on the unproven existence of extraterrestrials, and the human side, based on conclusively existing human sexual perpetrators. The task of any "therapy," ostensibly, is to orient the client to reality. And if David Jacobs is in consultation with professional psychiatrists, as he claims, what does it say about their ethical standards with regard to their support of his work?

Are you, Mr. Jacobs—and Dr. Steinhouse, Dr. Kluff, if you advise Jacobs—orienting clients to reality? Doctors, are you ORIENTING DAVID JACOBS TO REALITY?

"The problems are made incalculably worse by the bonding and sexual-arousal procedures performed on all abductees," Jacobs states on page 252, Secret Life. "When the alien performs bonding on a young child who is lying naked on a table, the rush of pleasurable emotions in her is irresistible. She is completely defenseless. This is even more injurious when the Taller Being ('male' or 'female') elicits intense sexual arousal feelings and even orgasm. Then, while bonding and/or sexual feelings are at a peak, the Being begins the gynecological or urological procedures and physically intrudes into her genitals or mechanically extracts his sperm."

What is this scenario if David Jacobs and his psychiatric advisors are incorrect? Who is perpetrating the abuse of a young child if the asserted aliens don't exist?

What are the psychological ramifications of creating false memories of alien-perpetrated sexual abuse in children? Apparently, Jacobs narrowly escaped finding out.

"Although I have purposely not conducted hypnosis with children—not enough is known about how their knowledge of being abducted could affect their personal development—from time to time worried parents will either tell me about what is happening to their children or bring them to talk to me. I find this to be the most heartrending and frustrating aspect of the abduction phenomenon. Although the parents usually do not discuss abductions in front of them, children as young as two years old will talk about 'egg-men' coming in through their windows at night and taking them places. 'Bad doctors' come into their rooms and 'hurt' them." (Secret Life, P. 286.)

MORE QUESTIONS

"Screen Memories of Sexual Abuse

"Before false memory syndrome came to prominence, therapists assumed that abduction accounts were due to repressed memories of sexual abuse in childhood. They postulated that because the abuse was so traumatic, the victim unconsciously transposed the abuse into an abduction account. To cope with the terror, the person lived with the more 'acceptable' trauma of being kidnapped by aliens."

"There is no evidence for this explanation. There are no instances on record of an abduction account being a 'screen memory' of sexual abuse. In fact, the opposite is true. There is a great deal of evidence that people 'remember' being sexually abused when in reality they were victimized by the abduction phenomenon." (The Threat, p. 40.)

Is this strictly correct, Mr. Jacobs?

Perhaps it may have been correct at the time. After all, The Threat was published in 1998. But you've collected more data since then. Surely.

Being the excellent researcher you are, you are surely aware, aren't you, of the term "retroactive interference"? "Proactive interference"? "Source confusion"? "Summed similarity"?

Surely, being a hypnotist, though admittedly unlicensed/uncertified, you're aware of "state dependent" memory? "Context dependent" memory? They're the theoretical justifications for doing posthypnotic regression in the first place.

Couldn't memory of an event—say, childhood trauma of some stripe—be retroactively interfered with through posthypnotic regression? Couldn't proactive interference—the intrusion of past memory upon a person's ability to learn/experience new information inform an abduction scenario with the emotional ambience of traumatic experience? Making it smell real?

Couldn't you get an "abductee" who was abused in his childhood to confuse that abuse with their abduction experience by SUMMING THEIR SIMILARITIES? Couldn't you get them, by retroactively interfering with their verified memories via suggestive hypnotic regression, to total real abuse and alien abduction abuse together?

After all, sexual abuse=sexual abuse. All that remains is window dressing.

Or have you done the math?

Quotation from David Michael Jacobs, The Threat. Fireside, Simon and Schuster, New York: 1998.
