A Call for Legislative Action in the State of Pennsylvania

Pennsylvania, did ya know ya got a little Alien-Human Hybridization problem?

Well, you better call somebody.

Let me explain.

As it stands now, last I checked, the State of Pennsylvania is the Wild, Wild, West as far as the practice of hypnosis is concerned.

The lack of laws regulating the practice of hypnosis in the State allows people like "Dr." David Jacobs, the Alien Abduction researcher who has so badly abused its use, to run free in the land, subjecting his poor practices on anyone who consults him. It is clear from Mr. Jacobs's appearance on a recent paranormal radio show both that he intends to continue his practice of hypnosis and that the paranormal community will continue to hold him out as a legitimate hypnotic regressionist.

Seeing as how the paranormal community seems incapable of self-regulation, I call on the legislature of the State of Pennsylvania to promulgate such rules and regulations as to make the practice of hypnosis illegal without licensure or certification, subject to criminal penalty, based on significant training to include advanced study in psychology, psychiatry or social work, with the licensing authority empowered to make ethical guidelines and to ensure adequate compliance with the guidelines and the law.

This will make it easier for people who have been abused by the negligent practice of hypnosis by amateurs to bring legal action against perpetrators and to prevent further abuse.

Either we are a nation of laws or we are lawless.

The State of Pennsylvania should also undertake this measure as a matter of international goodwill. David Jacobs used hypnosis to plant a diagnosis of multiple personality disorder with a suggestion his subject take medication in a young woman from another country. Is it once again the case that it is permissible for Americans to subject foreign nationals to mistreatment and is Pennsylvania seriously more interested in preserving its citizens' safety from alien human hybridization than it is in international goodwill?

Because that is apparently the case.

I thought long and hard about what, if anything, I could do. I decided that one approach would be, during hypnosis, to give Alice [the condescending pseudonym ascribed to the young woman by Jacobs] ideas to think about that would throw "mind-readers" off my trail. I explained my thinking to her before I acted. Then at one point during a hypnosis session I told her that as a researcher I was interested not in abductions but in multiple personality disorder. I chose this because it is believable—the disorder has characteristics in common with the effects of abductions. I hoped that she would be able to keep this idea in her mind and convey it to her abductors, thereby relieving some of the pressure both she and I felt. At no time did I think that Alice had multiple personality disorder, and of course neither did she. She knew exactly what was happening and why.

(The Defamation Campaign, from Dr. David Jacobs's website. PDF obtained 9-21-2010)

What is the legal defense to a defamation claim? The truth.

The above quoted statement amounts to Jacobs's confession that he believed mind-reading aliens were in pursuit of him and this justified planting the posthypnotic suggestion in the young woman's mind that she had multiple personality disorder. For a defamation cause to succeed at bar, the defamation claimed must be untrue. In the above, Jacobs made confession to the acts he claims others are defaming him for. If there is defamation here, Jacobs ought to be one of those charged with committing it because his confession, by his reasoning, is defamatory. He has defamed himself.

It should be pointed out as well that the last sentence concerning the young lady knowing exactly what was happening and why is implying that he, Jacobs, had consent to implant the diagnosis. This is indeed what is contended by his supporters. However, he did not receive consent, according to the young lady.

Dwayne A. Day, writing at The Space Review, notes that he does not have additional sources confirming this, but: many of the elements that Annie Jacobsen's source used in her Roswell story are there in [science fiction writer James] Blish's short story ...

Jacobs's contention that he had consent to do what he did amount's to a Nazi Doctor defense. The act does not get exonerated by consent and in fact consent would call his ethics even more deeply into question. Should I deliver electric shocks to people simply because I have consent from University to do it? (See the Milgram Experiments.)

His lack of restraint equates evenly with his lack of training and education. Had he an ethical framework or a board of review to answer to he might have wondered about the propriety of what he was doing. In Pennsylvania, no such board of review exists. Before the law, it is said in biblical exegesis, there is no offense.

There is an old snake-oil salesman saying: There is no law agin' it.

If we are not a nation of laws, we are lawless.

David Jacobs has a PhD in history. That degree permits no entitlements or privileges with regard to the field of hypnosis. He has no certification, license, or formal training in the practice of hypnosis or hypnotherapy. He is not certified in dispensing medication. And yet he used a tool he is not licensed to use to plant a suggestion that his client was afflicted with multiple personality disorder with an addended suggestion that she should take medication for it. His "clinical" support for these actions is the contention that he needed to plant these suggestions in his client's mind to throw off the pursuit of his person by psychic alien human hybrids who were reading his client's mind and using their psychic impressions as a global positioning system to locate him and stop him from disclosing the existence of alien life on planet earth.

Had his "ruse of war" been taken seriously, the young woman's psychological life would have been snuffed out. If Emma Woods, the pseudonym used by the young woman for confidentiality purposes, had been a good little girl and had wanted to please Dr. Jacobs and wished to excel at helping him evade capture by aliens, she might have consulted an MPD specialist. She might have sought a prescription to treat the disorder. Had she done so, the consequences would have been disastrous.

The Satanic Panic of the 1980s and 1990s involved, among other things, lawmakers may remember, the abusive diagnosing of patients with multiple personality disorder and the use of hypnosis as a weapon to reinforce the diagnosis or in some cases, create the disorder in the first place. Not only were the abused patients given hypnotic suggestions they had multiple personality disorder, the personalities were created by the therapists and in addition patients were prescribed medication to treat a disorder they did not have, further disorienting them.

Intended or not, the use of hypnosis to create a disorder that essentially dismantles the personality and the consequent prescription of medication to augment the "therapy", confuses the patient to an astounding degree—enough to prevent any coherent quest for redress. Simply review the bombed out lives of the victims from that era and you will see how ruthlessly inhumane the mixture of hypnosis and multiple personality disorder is.

There are two schools of thought about Mr. Jacobs's actions. One is that he knew what he was doing and the other is that he didn't. The first implies that Jacobs is a Machiavellian Chess Player whose every move is calculated. The second implies that he is an incompetent, uneducated hypnotist and bumbling fool, caught in some kind of improvisation gone badly awry.

My suspicion is that he is a Machiavellian bumbling fool trying to play chess.

Jacobs was aware of the Satanic Ritual Abuse scandal. He addressed false memory syndrome on page 36 of his bestseller, The Threat. He's intimately familiar with the False Memory Syndrome Foundation. They're based in Philadelphia. He cites them in The Threat. The website of the False Memory Syndrome Foundation was the main source of information in my own research into the effects of Multiple Personality Disorder. It is not likely that Jacobs is unfamiliar with the Foundation's work on the mixture of MPD with hypnosis.

Did he take a page from the manual of the Satan Shrinks of Texas? (See references below.) It is plausible that a bumbling Machiavellian Chess Player might want to kill two birds with one stone: He might wish to create compelling fiction and eliminate any possibility he might receive trouble from Miss Woods. On the one hand he is hypnotically weaving a fictional web with confabulated corroboration from his other subjects and doing a James Bond dance in Emma Woods's mind and on the other, on the off chance that Woods is stupid enough to follow his suggestions, he has a subject who deteriorates mentally as a result of his diagnosis and her obtaining a prescription for her "MPD" disorder.

What is the perfect Machiavellian way to silence someone complaining about your methods? Cripple them psychologically, that's how.

I can see it now in the resulting Jacobs book:

Battling the threat of alien-human hybridization exacts a price. Sadly, today, one of the heroes in the struggle is battling Multiple Personality Disorder as a result of the alien invasion of her mind. I soldier on, weeping tears over her loss, knowing she saved me from their clutches, sacrificing her sanity so that tactical disclosure of their presence on our great blue planet might ultimately succeed.

Either way, the State of Pennsylvania should act to end this cruel stupidity. Whether Jacobs is a bumbling idiot or Niccolò Machiavelli reincarnate with a dash of Svengali mixed in, the fact remains he has no business performing hypnosis for any purpose. In the absence of a restraining order prohibiting him from the practice, the State ought to make law making him, or any other amateur, a criminal if conducts the practice in the future.

There is something in chess called Fool's Mate, Dr. Jacobs. You bumbled right into it.

I urge people of conscience in Pennsylvania to write their state legislators and urge passage of a comprehensive legislative package outlawing and criminalizing the practice of hypnosis without certification, degree, or licensure and I urge similar people across the United States to take the like action in your State if your State similarly does not regulate the practice of hypnosis.

Action Links

It is a pretty fast way to get a cause examined by your representatives and is certainly more effective than expiring in frustration on paranormal message boards.

Well stated, Gary! I admire you for staying on Jacobs' case. No small feat in the world of abductionology where the 'good ole boys' are excused and their victims painted to be the bad guys/gals.

Thank you for your blog posts on my situation. I think that you have explained the complex issue involved so well.

In regard to Dr. Jacobs implanting hypnotic suggestions in my mind that I had MPD, he told Bill Birmes that he obtained my permission to do it. However, this is completely untrue. I had no idea that he was going to do it until he did.

In Dr. Jacobs' defamatory statement about me on his website (in which he refers to me as 'Alice') he says the following:

"I decided that one approach would be, during hypnosis, to give Alice ideas to think about that would throw "mind-readers" off my trail. I explained my thinking to her before I acted."

However, Dr. Jacobs does NOT say that he obtained my permission to implant those hypnotic suggestions in my mind that I had MPD. Instead, he says, "I explained my thinking to her before I acted."

If Dr. Jacobs had really obtained my permission to do that to me, why did not say that in his statement? It would be the obvious thing to say, especially as this is what he claimed to Bill Birmes.

Dr. Jacobs' entire response to having his misconduct exposed in public has been to tell whatever lie he thinks will work for him at any given time, and to try to do everything that he can to destroy my personal reputation so that no one will listen to what I say about his abuse.

As a further example of Dr. Jacobs' dishonesty, in his statement he lists a series of events that he alleges took place in October 2006. All of these events are either outright lies or distortions of what actually happened. He then says that he "thought long and hard" about what to do, and that he came up with the MPD tactic.

However, Dr. Jacobs put the hypnotic suggestions in my mind that I had MPD months before then, in late June 2006. His claim that he did it to me after a series of events in October 2006 is therefore a logical impossibility. He had already done it months before the events that he claims precipitated it.

Dr. Jacobs' entire statement is full of blatant lies like this. He has simply banked on enough people not knowing the basic facts to be able to get away with it.

In my opinion, the fact that Dr. Jacobs has been prepared to be so incredibly dishonest in his response to having his misconduct made public, demonstrates that his entire body of research cannot be trusted. In my opinion, he is just a self-serving fraud, who uses people in the vulnerable hypnotic state to further his own self-interest, and he has really hurt people in the process.

This is so true. Dr. Jacobs MUST have known what he was doing to me when he implanted those hypnotic suggestions in my mind that I had MPD.

I was contacted through my website by the research subject who Dr. Jacobs took on after me, who was 21-years-old at the time. He told me that Dr. Jacobs used hypnosis to try to instill a message in his mind to the aliens that he (the young man) was "the bad guy", ostensibly so that the aliens would go after him and not Dr. Jacobs.

Dr. Jacobs had to have known what he was doing to the young man under hypnosis, in the same way that he had to have known what he was doing to me. The potential for harm in putting those hypnotic suggestions in a young man's mind are obvious to anyone.

How could Dr. Jacobs do such potentially damaging things to us?

It is a question that I know that I will probably never know the answer to.

However, I really hope that one day it is illegal to use hypnosis in the way that it is being used now. That will go a long way to protecting research subjects from abusive researchers like Dr. Jacobs.
